Funny how Garston seems to be disappearing and is being engulfed by Speke. Garston traces its history back to 1200 and was an industrial area throughout my life. Cressington / grassendale is at one end of St Mary's road yet suddenly we are detached and become Speke Garston without batting an eye. Not even Garston/ Speke just an add on. I feel Garston a once thriving village is now overlooked. The community of Garston is very much that a community. We used be St Mary's ward whenever elections arose for many years then suddenly Speke /Garston. Speke is massive and indeed to travel to back of Speke I would be in Aigburth in same time frame. I'd be interested to hear views on this. Places such as " ropewalks" has its Own identity but then it's in the " Baltic triangle" not " the sticks"
