The village of Eldwick should remain as one and not be split. Baildon is an entirely separate village. Reasons why: There is a Moor between the two areas which in snow and ice is difficult to traverse. The road between the two is not suitable for walking, if one is able, motor transport being absolutely essential, causing pollution. There is no direct bus service between the two, indeed it would take 3 bus journeys to get from Eldwick to Baildon. There is no sensible reason to join the two.
