Related subject: Bingley East ward

I fully accept the very much improved division of my ward to comply with the increasing rise in the electors expected by 2029. The original proposal to split Eldwick in two with rural Eldwick becoming part of Baildon was truly appalling. Creating a new ward with NO public transport links between the separate communities was very bad. Other than private road transport how would rural Eldwick electors get to meet their councillors in Baildon. Using the natural barrier of the Leeds to Scotland main railway line is strong and decisive, this provides perfect clarity and is very welcome. The new wards of Bingley East and Bingley West follows close to the traditional boundaries set up by Bingley Urban District Council in the 19th century. I applaud the Boundary Commission for providing a much improved solution to the original proposals for polling district re-organisation. Thank you.
