Comment text:

I am wholly against the reclassification of elements of Jesmond currently under the south jesmond boundary and specifically Jesmond Vale. Also the boundary for north Jesmond is ridiculous in bringing large elements of the town moor -which nobody lives on. How specifically the boundary for south Jesmond is trying to move something that even in the 80s when the central motorway was built it avoided splitting Jesmond up. Also this boundary move would be far more beneficial to the Labour Party than others due to the move into a more Labour centric boundary. Also if funds where allocated for works within the Jesmond boundary currently the whole of Jesmond benefits-however with the proposed move there could be elements of half a job completed as part of Jesmond didn't get funding as it's in another boundary. Please reconsider as the current boundaries work well and should not be altered. Just as an aside that if the new boundary goes ahead the Jesmond cemetery will no longer be in the Jesmond ward-pretty ridiculous-don't you think?
