Comment text:

I live in Lemington which used to be a lovely area, within the boundaries of Newburn Urban District Council, Northumberland. Unfortunately in 1973, our whole district got absorbed into Newcastle upon Tyne, there was no consultation at that time, and the repercussions it has had on our areas have been disastrous, to say the least.

The best way forward from what I can see, if boundaries are to be changed, put our area back into Northumberland, the natural boundary is roughly where the A1 road is now, our once lovely areas will only go from bad to worse if we stay within the confines of Newcastle upon Tyne. If you look at old photographs of Lemington, Newburn and Throckley, and look at these areas now, what a contrast, that would be the best change of boundaries we could hope for.
