Number of councillors: If my one local MP can look after the interests of a constituency of 70,000 people with a staff of 5, why does it take THREE local councillors, to look after each ward of a few thousand? I get it that the council leader needs to invest in copious amounts of hair gel and alcohol, and I have no problem with that, but what I do struggle with is why he needs more than 50 other elected grifters and senile busybodies to support him in that work.
