Comment text:

I think that the word sandwell is just too much of a area and doesn't help people get the support needed inthe areas they personally need. I'm currently having nothing but problems with the local authority. I feared my daughter was being groomed and at substantial risk. Even after voicing my concerns nothing has been done to house us and she was strangled until unconscious and came around to being kicked in the back. She could be brain dead after lack of oxygen or worse dead.

I've had to promise her that I'm closer to her and not going back to west Bromwich which to others sounds close as it's also under sandwell, but without a car and with disabilities it really isn't close at all.

I have been on housing since April last year and in interim temporary accommodation since October and that's after contacting levelling up and the MP at the time Shaun Bailey contacting them.

I'm still awaiting a home I'm in a hostel which was meant to be a few weeks and I only agreed after they said my children could come there. Which wasn't true.

I'm feeling like I've been taken away from my family and children my support network, health care services and other health care services I was engaged with. As they say it's all under sandwell. This isn't how my health centre seems it. Therefore I'm too scared to give the temporary accommodation address as I have never been to any other doctors.

My children have voiced their views that they've felt abandoned and I think it's disgusting that I have been crying out for help since April last year and only found out recently that they started to look at anything was February.

The local authority are letting people down under the sandwell expression without really taking into consideration that from 1 end to another is about a 2 hour walk.

Something really does need to change because my daughter could be dead right now and I have complained to the ombudsman and complained about children trust too. I fear for people of "sandwell"
