I honestly believe that the first selections given to the full council meeting is very inconsidered and without full proof that it is legitimate information based on proper research. None of the preferred wards that are in line for removal have ANY Tory councillors in place, so is this a thinly disguised political choice made to remove the opposition without electoral voting needed?

The reasons stated have poor relevance to community adherence and joint uses of services within adjoining ward areas. If Great Coates Road was built and barriered off like the Berlin Wall, then there would be a definite break in continuity across ward boundaries, but that is not true. There was no mention of huge new housing estates changing voter numbers in the near future. If a planned influx is made for a 300 house new estate on the Freshney Parkway, why would there be a need to dissolve the Freshney Ward? Which ward would these residents be a part of? This selection looks to be aimed at the more lower income/ higher tenancy areas.

I hope that far better, unbiased views can be put forward for consideration.
