Related subject: Boundary changes

I do not think changing the East Marsh Boundary is a sensible idea. Currently the ward is facing distinct issues and work is being done across a range of groups and initiatives to create a community led approach to improving lives. There is a clear sense of distinctive identity in the ward and work can be coherent around the specific ward issues. There is a new East Marsh Community Plan project in partnership with NELC. It would seem rather absurd to launch that, undertake serious work and then undermine it with a boundary change.
