Comment text:

I have lived in Scartho for approaching 5 years, and I think it should remain as one ward area for election purposes.

Scartho is growing with new housing, and I was surprised it was moved into Brigg and Immingham for the General Election, as most people regard it as Grimsby. The local hospital is walking distance from much of Scartho, and it is called Grimsby Hospital, but its on Scartho Road.

My partner is a local councillor and often tells me of local streets which aren't in Scartho but are in Waltham or Park, but neither of us really understand why, apart from some sort of historical accident.

My son attends a school called Scartho which is in Park ward. I think the polling station is even in that school, but for Park ward. Some of the Scartho Top estate is in Park ward. I don't think that makes sense, and it should be reviewed.
