Related subject: Wards and electoral boundaries

The removal of a ward does not promote positive politics. The ward in question has independent councillors does this show that when the public decide on a non dominant party who have their own interests before the voting public that they will be removed off of the local map. My electoral boundary has been changed to Brigg, it's a 45 minute drive away, my important issues are not their important issues and vice versa. Removing the freshness ward reinforces a council who are being challenged by independent councillors who genuinely want a better environment and atmosphere by raising the profile of issues and points of contention that are usual swept under a carpet.
