1. This is the first I have heard of the proposal to change the boundaries. I'm disappointed not to have had the chance to comment during the earlier stages.
2. I do not like the proposed name of "Sharmans Cross", which refers to a tiny part (just one crossroads and its immediate environs) of the proposed new ward. Most local residents, I am sure, would say that they live in "Shirley" or perhaps "Solihull". I think the ward name should reflect that.
3. Many of the other wards do not appear to correlate well with common local usage. For example, it seems strange to include large parts of the older central part of solihull with Monkspath, which is a modern residential area, with (I think most locals would overwhelmingly agree) its own distinct identity, some miles away from the centre of Solihull itself.
